G Am C G Am C

G D
You are like a mountain,
C G
and then you're like the sand.
Am C
One moment you're too high to climb,
Em D
The next you slip through my hand.
G D C G
Maybe we could compromise, and meet somewhere between.
Am C
And one of us, could try and say,
G D G Am C G Am C
something that we mean.

I am not, nor ever was,
a soldier with his gun.
The gifts I have, have all been given me,
not stolen on the run.
I've been around enough to know, that love is what you find.
You trust in me and I'll trust in you.
Or else we're left behind.

And I'm not a fool,
Just for having to say that I love you.

All along the great divide,
I reach across to you.
And once or twice, well I could have sworn,
I saw you reaching too.
But you are young and beautiful, and proud of who you are.
And I'm a young man still dreaming, reaching for the stars.
