

Muse 2011 6-26

Oh I know, the feeling of letting go....

It is a time of transitions. It is a time to feeling the pain of letting go of something precious that cannot and will not continue, and moving forward into something else. Such is life. But it must be groked in its fullness and cherished, even if it is painful to let go (an obvious reference to Stranger in a Strange Land).

*There's so many times it felt impossible,
when life and love start to change
And dreams slowly turn into memories, with no one there to explain
So I turned to the night, like a long lost friend
And somewhere out in the night I hear a train
Oh I know,
the feeling of letting go.*

I felt that feeling last night. I knew it to be so. And the only way to move forward is to embrace it.