

IN A WORLD

9-14-003 first put words put to paper, but finished on 9/20/03 (mostly on a bike!), and revised 10/03/03.

First conceived about three weeks prior.

Thomas W. Ilvento

In a world of 6 billion people,
I'm glad I found you.
I wasn't looking for anybody,
you just seemed to come my way.
You held out your hand,
I didn't see, any danger there.
Since then I haven't let go,
it feels so right, your hand in mine.

In a world of 6 billion people,
I'm amazed that we found each other
Chances are we shouldn't have met,
but somehow we found a way.
It feel like a mystery,
the stars align, the Moon and Mars.
Just two lonely people
Hand in hand in this great big world.

I a world of 6 billion people,
I'm glad I found you.
I'm glad I found you.

Optional solo

Bridge: Fate's a word, I've never trusted,
I've been down that road before.
But every time, I look at you,
I can't help thinking, this was meant to be...

In a world of 6 billion people
it's easy to lose you way
Day-to-day takes so much attention,
the time seems to slip away.
So many people,
are searching for, a way back home
but you and me, we found each other,
we only have to not let go.

In a world of 6 billion people
I'm glad I found you,
I'm glad I found you,
I'm glad I found you.
