

Not Forgotten

twi 7/04/03

Maybe sometimes when you're feeling sad and lonely,
And your heart's an open door.
Will you think of me as someone who is waiting there?
Will you think of me at all?
And anytime you feel this way,
I wouldn't mind,
Not to be forgotten.

Maybe sometimes when the night is softly falling,
And the moon is bright and clear.
Are there times when you're left searching through your feelings,
Do you think you'll find me there?
Will you forgive the times I let you down?
I wouldn't mind,
Not to be forgotten.

And every time you laughed,
And every word you spoke,
And every move you made,
And every kiss you gave,
And every dream we had,
Are locked inside my memory,
Not forgotten

Interlude/solo

Maybe some day when you're far away and needing dreams,
You could think of me and smile.
I could be a respite from a cold and lonely world,
I could be your in between.
I wouldn't want you to remain too long,
but I wouldn't mind,
not to be forgotten,
not to be forgotten,
not to be forgotten.

- This song surprised me in that it definitely has a future feel to it - that was intended. The surprise was that it had two meanings (to me), and I didn't quite see the second meaning at first. Both meanings have a sort of reflective sadness/tenderness, but one meaning has more hope.
- I think this will be a good song where the music, the thought, and the performance come together to make a complete effort.